- Compliance Plan: Develop a cybersecurity compliance and legal risk mitigation plan and the necessary supporting policies and procedures.
- Flexible Services: If you already have a cybersecurity compliance plan in place, we can assist with its implementation by providing sample policies, training and strategies for supplier/business partner management.

We also offer Cybersecurity Incident Response Services to help your organization respond and react to a cybersecurity incident.

Understand the Legal Requirements

There are an increasing number of legal and regulatory requirements for organizations as it relates to cybersecurity:

- Technical safeguards and security policies
- Security and privacy incident response plans
- Requirements for contracts and vendor management
- Training and policies for staff
- Policies for reporting security and privacy incidents to Regulators and Privacy Commissioners – most organizations are or will be subject to mandatory reporting and record keeping requirements

We can help you understand the legal requirements that apply to your organization and help align your compliance plan with those requirements.

Understand Legal Risk

An organization's legal risk profile from cybersecurity threats will vary depending on a number of different factors. For example:

- If your organization has a large number of customers, there is a risk of a class action lawsuit based on a breach of privacy laws or negligence if personal information is lost or corrupted;
- If your organization has business partners and has possession of their confidential information, there is a risk of a lawsuit based on breach of contract or negligence if your business partners' confidential information is lost or corrupted.

In both cases it will be important for your organization to demonstrate that it has taken appropriate measures to mitigate the risk of a cybersecurity breach and to take immediate and appropriate action after a breach has occurred.

We can help you understand the legal risks that are applicable to your organization and help you develop an appropriate legal risk mitigation plan.
